

A MILITARY HISTORY OF PORTAGE 1673-1975

This is the first definitive history and reference for the men and women of the Portage area who have served their country in the armed forces as they moved through the ranks and were assigned world wide.

The book traces the development of local military units from the early days of Portage through major wars and other hostile engagements.

The importance of Company F, not only to the war efforts, but to the peacetime activities of the city, is emphasized.

It includes headlines that describe the local, state, national and global history of those years.

This book has been compiled by J. Robert Curtis and is sold by the Portage Historical Society who will receive all of the profits.
